

Wednesday, January 7, 2009

Group gives roads in Birmingham a failing grade for funding

A report issued by a nonprofit transportation research group gave Birmingham, Ala., a failing grade for transportation funding. Road conditions received a "C-" and bridge conditions received a "C," according to the TRIP report. Several projects to improve transportation in the area need additional funding to proceed, including improvements to Interstates 59, 65 and 459, the report noted. RoadsBridges.com (1/6)